PRESS RELEASE

Since the beginning of the country's political history, immigration has been a central issue in discussions about economic, security, and humanitarian issues. But why is that? Why is it so horrible that immigrants want to start a new life somewhere else? "President Donald Trump put the issues back at the center of public debate with his unprecedented efforts to curb immigration and reshape asylum policy. Mean while President Joe Biden pledged to reverse Trump's actions and reform the system" I feel as though Everyone needs a chance to at something new because they have families/people to care for and they want them to have a better life. about 45 million people out of a total of nearly 332 million in 2020, according to the Census Bureau. Together, immigrants and their U.S.-born children make up about 26 percent of U.S. inhabitants, and some researchers have predicted that this number will reach 36 percent by 2065.

I chose this topic because people in the world have reasons as to why they want to start over with new lives. They have reasons why they want to give their families a better life meanwhile people are taking that away from them like it's nothing. This personally has nothing to do with me I just see so many cases on people being deported and I feel as though this should be a known problem in this world.
